

B(R)EACHED GOVERNANCE

SUBVERTING OF LOCAL GOVERNANCE OF TOURISM IN GOA

The Constitution of India envisions a participatory process of governance by devolving powers to the Panchayati Raj Institutions at different levels. It brings governance closer to the people where they participate in the decision making processes through the Gram Sabhas at the local level. Although, tourism is sustained on local resources and impacts different facets of people's lives, it still remains ungoverned by the Panchayats.
